ANNUAL REPORT

OF THE

Superintending School Committee

FOR THE TOWN,

AND FOR

SCHOOL DISTRICT No. 8,

IN THE

TOWN OF ROCHESTER,

FOR THE

Year Ending March, 1882.

TOWN OF ROCHESTER, March 15, 1882.

At the annual town meeting holden on the tenth day of March, 1881, the following vote was passed :

Voted, That the Report of the Superintending School Committee be printed annually, hereafter, with the Town Reports, and distributed.

Attest, HORACE L. WORCESTER, Town Clerk.

SCHOOL COMMITTEE'S REPORT.

On taking a review of the public schools of Rochester, your Committee are pleased to find the condition and results of work performed in the various districts, fully up to the average of former years, and, we are inclined to think, somewhat in advance. The teachers employed have, as a rule, worked diligently, and their labor has had its reward in the advancement of the pupils under their charge. There have been no violent outbreaks and no serious disturbances in the schools, to our knowledge, that would serve to subvert authority and destroy the proper effect of discipline and teaching. Such was not the case last season.

During the year a new series of readers has been introduced, and with good effect; as an interest has been shown by the scholars in their reading lessons that was not shown when using the old, to which they had become so accustomed, in some instances having committed almost the entire contents to memory. Besides they have had in use a superior work. In this we claim a step in advance.

But, although we are able to report success and progress, yet there are various hindrances which cause the work of the teacher—no matter how well qualified—to fall short of the desired results. Foremost amongst these is the great want of prompt attendance on the part of the scholars. In looking over the registers of the different schools, it is very easy to see that to many the schools have been of little or no benefit. Some have attended just enough to secure a membership for the term, and have then dropped out; others have attended but a day or two at a time, and have continued so doing through the term. It will be readily seen that such an attendance (or rather non-attendance) can have no other than a bad effect on the school, and is of no perceptible advantage to the scholar. The classes to which he is attached must either be kept back to favor him, or else go on with or without him. In either case the class suffers, as the teacher is under obligation to bestow on him a fair share of the time of recitation, and if he is behind the others, lose the benefit of his drill or exercise. And in nine cases out of ten, the ones who evince the least interest are the first to complain of the teacher and the management of the school. A vigorous enforcement of that part of the school laws relating to compulsory attendance, would go far toward remedying this evil.

Again, a lack of co-operation on the part of parents and guardians, does much to render the teacher's efforts of no avail. Instead of seconding their efforts and encouraging their children to do their best, they listen readily to any little childish complaint and turn against the teacher in both word and action. Real faults are magnified and imaginary ones enlarged upon until all desire to work, on the part of the child, is entirely lost, and as a natural result, little good is accomplished. We are not upholding poor teachers; but give each the benefit of your sympathy and help, and then watch the result. A teacher who cannot then succeed, should change to some other work.

We would call the attention of the patrons, and especially of prudential committees, to the state of repair of some school houses in town. The law makes an allowance of a per cent. of school money sufficient to keep in excellent repair every school building in town; yet part of them present an appearance of neglect not calculated to impress any one very favorably. In some there is insufficient and imperfect heating apparatus; broken stoves of small size and it may be wood only half seasoned; stove-pipe that lets more smoke into the room than it conducts out, and study is out of the question. We venture the assertion that a single half hour in a smoky and cold room will drive more out of a pupil's mind than a day's instruction can replace. Seats and desks are carved and mutilated in all manner of ways, and much real value destroyed in this way. We are glad to see in some districts evidences that this nuisance has been abated, and the appearances are very much improved. A penalty attached to each offence of this kind generally has the desired effect. Committees should see that windows are well supplied with glass, and floors well laid and in good order. Outbuildings are sometimes anything but clean, though we are willing to admit it is difficult to keep them tidy.

One thing more, and that in regard to furnishing school rooms with proper apparatus. Some have nothing more than a map of New Hampshire, and some not even that. Maps, charts, globes, cubes, squares, &c., are entirely lacking in many instances. These should be supplied as far as possible, and all help given both teacher and scholar that can be afforded consistently.

Wishing for the future success and welfare of the schools of Rochester, we respectfully submit this report.

REPORT

SCHOOLS IN DISTRICT No. 8,

FOR THE YEAR ENDING MARCH, 1882.

The schools as a whole throughout the year have been as successful as could reasonably be expected. Some of them, we believe, have been among the best to be found. Of these the teachers were earnest, laborious, progressive, enthusiastic and fully alive to the importance of the work they have in hand. They realize, we think, that their work is far-reaching, that "the teachers, not the legislators, are the builders of the future America," and are skillfully and patiently striving to build their allotted portion of the structure securely.

Says a leading educator, "The most difficult art in the world, the most difficult of all arts, far exceeding that required to chisel a statue or paint a picture, is to train a child up to be a man." Yet how young and inexperienced many of these trainers are! Only a few years of their youth, as a rule, are devoted to this great art. After they have acquired a little experience and aptness, together with a riper judgment they betake themselves to some other calling. Thus the great art suffers. A partial remedy for this want of experience in young teachers, we think, might be had by establishing a training school like those of Quincy and other large places, where those aspiring to become teachers may be placed in the school-room and required to conduct class exercises and manage scholars under the directions and criticisms of experienced and skillful teachers. A step looking to such a plan was attempted last term. A number of the lady graduates of our High School spent several weeks in Mrs. Bennett's school for this purpose. We shall be disappointed if that lady's intelligent methods do not impress themselves upon these graduates, and materially enhance their usefulness as teachers.

An especial effort has been made to improve the primary schools. Heretofore a large portion of the time of pupils in these schools has been worse than wasted. They were made to sit from hour to hour in their seats, with nothing to improve or even divert their minds. This is unnatural and pernicious. Those young, active minds must, and will, have some employment, useful or otherwise. This time, hitherto well nigh wasted, we have been endeavoring to utilize, and we think with considerable success. We have had these pupils furnished with slate and pencil, and taught to write and read writing as soon as they enter school. Their spelling lessons, and much of what they read, they are required to write. They are thus constantly improving in penmanship, and at the same in reading and spelling.

As a result, we find that nearly all our primary scholars, however young, can read script with as much facility as print, and the most of them can write a very good hand. Indeed, some only six years of age, are able to write quite a nice hand. We look for still greater improvements for these schools in the future.
